Plans pass for VG lot development

By Nanette Pietroforte
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

After more than a decade of designs and sketches, plans to landscape and develop the outside lot adjacent to Vista Grande Cafe were finally approved. The lot will be a new place to dine on campus.

"We're excited this is coming to fruition," said Alan Cushman, associate director for Campus Dining.

Proposed plans for Vista Court have been popular senior projects among landscape architecture majors.

"Since the early '80s, my department has been turning in ideas for that area," landscape architecture intern Jerico Farfan said. "They've been trying to do something with an area that I think is an eyesore."

In 1982, the first plan for the area was submitted, but it was never approved due to lack of funding. Two students designed another plan in 1985 as their senior project proposal, but the director of housing at the time put the project on hold also due to lack of funding.

"Campus dining didn't have money on reserve," Cushman said.

Farfan said past designers didn't get others involved to help alleviate the costs.

The cost of the project is shared equally by Housing and Residential

Inmate commits suicide

Correctional officers found inmate hung by sheets, tied to bunk

An inmate at the San Luis Obispo County Jail apparently hanged himself early Friday morning in his single-man cell.

Correctional officers found Phillip Scott Double at 3:05 a.m. suspended from sheets tied around a top bunk. He wasn't breathing and didn't have a pulse. Officers tried to revive Double by using an automatic electronic defibrillator until paramedics arrived. He was pronounced dead at 3:25 a.m.

36-year-old Double has been held on a Grover Beach robbery charge since June 14.

Sheriff's Department coroner investigators and detectives continue to investigate the apparent suicide. An autopsy is scheduled for early this week.

Relatives of Double have been notified of his death.

City of Avila proposes public input for clean-up process

By Diane Farnsworth
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

The process of rebuilding public recreation and the environment of Avila Beach began last Thursday night.

As a result of a settlement from Unocal, the California Department of Fish and Game, the Central Coast Regional Water Quality Board and the San Luis Obispo County Air Pollution Control District received $8 million for restoration and mitigation projects. People at Thursday night's public meeting discussed how this money would be allotted.

The three agencies are cooperating in a joint process to receive project recommendations from the public. San Luis Obispo supervisor Peg Pinard said this is a first.

"Ordinarily, each of these agencies would have its own set of hearings in different locations, with different schedules and different sets of criteria," Pinard said. "It's a pretty confusing process. But we're turning the national process literally upside-down. We're going to simplify the process by holding our meetings together. Hopefully, we can save money and put more into the projects. Our goal is to do this in the most efficient and simplest manner possible, so that everybody can participate and submit project ideas."

► Melissa Boggs, Department of Fish and Game, 772-1756.

► Larry Allen, APCD, 781-5912.

► John Robertson, Central Coast Water Quality Control Board, 542-4630.

Pinard said anybody can submit a project proposal, but proposals must be specific to the improvement of Avila.

Environmental specialist Melissa Boggs said the Department of Fish and Game will mitigate the loss of recreational use and natural resources injured as a result of contamination. The department has allotted $3.5 million toward recreational-use projects and $2.5 million for biological resource restoration projects.

"We're going to be forming a technical work group to help us decide on different types of biological projects that we can do," Boggs said. "San Luis Obispo creek restoration or building artificial reefs to enhance fisheries are some examples of biological restoration projects."

The Unocal settlement lends to a $8 million restoration process. The city of Avila held a public meeting on Thursday to discuss how the money would be allotted.

Control District said current estimates for emission-reduction projects are over $800,000.

"Potential projects could include bike lanes, summertime shuttles to Avila from outlying areas or retrofitting marine vessels with low emission engines," Allen said.

According to John Robertson, Central Coast Regional Water Quality Control Board member, $1 million has been set aside for water-quality related projects.

Project proposals may be submitted no later than Dec. 15. For more information, call Melissa Boggs, Department of Fish and Game at 772-1756; Larry Allen, APCD at 781-5912; or John Robertson, Central Coast Water Quality Control Board at 542-4630.

Baby boomers' children Tidal Wave UC system

(U-WIRE) SAN FRANCISCO — In response to an influx of more than 60,000 more students by 2010 — nicknamed Tidal Wave 2 — the UC Board of Regents on Thursday was presented with several possible responses to handling the children of the baby boomer generation.

Under the California Master Plan for Higher Education, the UC system is committed to providing an education for the top 12.5 percent of all high school graduates, according to UC spokesman Brad Hayward.

Previous UC predictions estimated that by 2010, 186,000 students would be enrolling at UC campuses. Currently there are around 150,000 students enrolled, and more recent estimates by the Department of Finance (DOF), the California Postsecondary Education Committee and the University of California, place the number of students enrolled in 2010 at approximately 210,000 — a growth of 43 percent.

In the 1960s, when the original Tidal Wave — the baby boomer generation — hit, the system had increases in enrollment of about 6,000 students a year for seven years. But, at that time, three new universities were introduced to absorb the increase.

In the next 12 years, the university will be absorbing 5,600 more students a year with only one new campus.

What makes this increase significant is not only its size but that historically, every great increase in enrollment, has been followed by a period of decrease, during which the university was able to catch up, according to Sandra Smith, assistant vice president for planning and analysis.

But projections after Tidal Wave 2 seem to show that no such decrease will occur.

"At no point in the university's history have we dealt with these kinds of numbers," UC President Richard Atkinson said.

But Smith said previous predictions have always been wrong.

"Every time we do this, we turn out to be wrong," she said. "But the fact that we are all converging on the same numbers is encouraging."

Life, Foundation and Cal Poly. Farfan worked with these groups to create an updated plan for revitalizing the area.

"We had a lot of meetings with hall council and with dining," Farfan said. Housing wanted an activity area, while Campus Dining wanted an outdoor dining area.

Farfan's only dilemma while designing the project was trying to meet everyone's needs.

"It's great to have a lot of departments involved, but the flip side of that is that everyone has an opinion," he said. "Trying to balance that, though, is what I like to do. I felt I needed to design something they're really going to use and really going to like."

The Vista Court will have deciduous trees, round concrete tables to seat 100, a wood trellis and a barbecue area for student groups.

Some students look forward to the upcoming renovation.

"It looks boring now, kind of bland," computer science freshman Zubin Koshy said. "I think a lot more people will go there."

A completion date for the area has not yet been scheduled, but Cushman is hoping the project will be finished soon.

"I'm hoping to see this done by the end of the school year," he said.

Season's changing colors are only a few miles from SLO

Led Zeppelin's Robert Plant had the right idea when he wrote about the changing seasons: "Leaves are falling all around, time I was on my way." These words describe the emotions some people feel when the dry summer months fade into crisp, breezy fall afternoons.

Josh Weismiller

Now that Cal Poly is in full swing, many of us will not get the chance to fly away to the eastern Sierra Nevada mountains where spectacular hues of almost every imaginable color burst into fire. There is hope: a few select places here on the Central Coast can provide the weekend or afternoon traveler with a sparkle of delight.

See Canyon is the closest, which can be found by taking Highway 101 south for about five miles. Take See Canyon exit and follow the posted signs to the delicious apple orchard valley.

This special place has just the right winter temperatures to foster a bustling apple business. Cooler temperatures also bring rise to a splendid fall color show.

While driving along See Canyon Road, check out the local vegetation, including California sycamores, California grapes, even the Merlot colors of poison oak. Cottonwood trees will surely grab your attention when the yellow shimmering leaves rustle in the Santa Ana winds.

► See Canyon: Highway 101 south to See Canyon exit.

► Cuesta Grade: Highway 101 north, two miles from Cal Poly.

these family-owned farms. You will be astounded how delicious they are.

Another place to observe local fall color is Cuesta Grade. The vegetation on the ridge of the coastal mountain range, like See Canyon, also has cooler temperatures than anywhere else in San Luis Obispo County. The colder temperatures allow plants to exhibit their splendid colors. Also take time to observe the remnants of a fire that raged through Cuesta Grade six years ago.

Aspen trees decorate the eastern Sierra Nevada mountains during fall. Locally, fall colors abound in See Canyon and on top of the Cuesta Grade.

anywhere else in San Luis Obispo County. The colder temperatures allow plants to exhibit their splendid colors. Also take time to observe the remnants of a fire that raged through Cuesta Grade six years ago.

Lastly is an area seven hours northeast of San Luis Obispo, near Bishop, California. Take Highway 101 north to Paso Robles, followed by Highway 46 and 41. This will take you all the way through Yosemite Valley. Upon cresting the last ridge out of the valley, continue east on Highway 120. Here you will see the Aspen trees' fiery show as the groves creep up the narrow valleys on the Sierra Nevada mountains' eastern side.

Administrators can't keep up with campus

Bureaucracy be damned. Decisions bogged in red tape are of no service to the student body. Goals and graduation push every student through classes and paperwork faster than you can say "quarter system." Yet the administration doesn't seem able to keep up.

The decisions that actually affect the life of this campus somehow get hemmed and hawed over until their impact is diminished. Take, for example, the Poly Plan, an initiative to raise student fees over several quarters. Students were polled to determine how administrators should spend the money. The Poly Plan committee even set a referendum date, then postponed it indefinitely. The focus of the Plan now seems lost because student fees actually decreased this quarter. The only decision administrators made was to not make a decision.

This year's new students most likely do not know the Poly

Plan exists because of that ever-elusive ball of red tape rolling through the administration's corridors.

In more recent news, administrators have yet to make the decision whether to inform parents of their children's illegal on-campus actions. That decision is waiting for student feedback. But the feedback is bogged down in student committees, which are bogged down in schedules and, needless to say, red tape. Granted, there must be some rumblings deep within the administration's inner sanctum regarding the policy and how it will affect students. However, nothing is actually happening on the student level.

Another monument to the bureaucratic mumbo jumbo on this campus is the University Union fountain. This fountain has been intermittently dry for decades not only because the pipes are broken but because there is a big red-tape ball caught somewhere in the system. President Baker brought up the possibility of repairing the fountain two summers ago. The Facilities and Operations Committee discussed the issue Oct. 1, 1998. Then silence. Certainly no running water. The Mustang Daily investigated the issue in May to no avail. The fountain's fate is wrapped in the UU Master Plan, which is buried in committee agendas, hearings and bureaucracy.

Though bureaucracy is inevitable at Cal Poly, as in any institution, it can be made more effective. Administrators need to take action when the issues are still relevant. Don't create red tape for bureaucracy's sake. When an issue is forced through numerous committees, subcommittees and special committees, the focus is lost.

Once pertinent issues such as the Poly Plan and UU fountain have become little more than typed paragraphs in a stack of minutes.

Unsigned editorials are the voice of Mustang Daily.

Letters to the editor

The Bible is consistent: Salvation is by faith alone

I feel the need to explain my views in response to Andrew Mead's letter ("Know what you preach," Oct. 14). Whenever you want to know what an author means when they write something, you must discover the author's original intent to his original audience. You must take the book as a whole, and you must take every phrase in every sentence as the construction of a greater thought. Every scholar must do this whenever studying any written work, especially those of antiquity.

This definitely has to be done when studying the Bible, or else you can easily misconstrue what is being communicated. When things are taken out of context, the real meaning is lost. Unfortunately, this has been done by many people throughout history and it has negatively affected people's view of who God is and what he has done for humanity.

This problem has led many people to believe that one must earn his way into heaven. Salvation by works is not supported by the Bible as a whole, nor by any carefully studied verse in the Bible. The Scriptures are the final authority on what God has said. Paul himself addressed the question of salvation in a letter to the church in Rome. "What does the scripture say? 'Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as righteousness'" (Rom 4:3). The inner quotation is taken from Genesis, the first book of the Bible. In fact, from the beginning to the end, the Bible speaks of salvation by faith and not by works. This idea of salvation by grace alone (an undeserved gift) is spoken of in Ephesians 2:8-9: "For it is by grace you have been saved, through faith — and this not from yourselves, it is the gift of God — not by works, so that no one can boast."

This says nothing about salvation through works. However, the deeds we do here on earth do play a part in our relationship with God. They are a natural outflow of the change that has happened within us. If one does not have the good works that accompany his faith, does he have a living faith at all? Jesus said, "Make a tree good and its fruit will be good, or make a tree bad and its fruit will be bad, for a tree is recognized by its fruit. ...For out of the overflow of the heart the mouth speaks" (Matt 12:33-34). If someone has been changed on the inside, their life should show it. Simply put, a saving faith is a living faith.

I have confidence in my salvation not because of what I have done, but because of God's promise. "And this is the testimony: God has given us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He who has the Son has life; he who does not have the Son of God does not have life. I write these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God so that you may know that you have eternal life" (1 Jn 5:11-13). I have the Son, so I have the life.

I have the fruit of the Spirit in me, I believe in the promise of God and know I have eternal life, which is knowing the one true God and Jesus Christ both now and forever. Don't take my word for it, nor anyone else's. Study the Bible yourself. Until then I will be living the abundant life that Jesus promised me (John 10:10).

Jeremiah Kepner is a math senior who studies the Word of God.

Don't confuse faith, works

Editor,
Andrew — thank you so much for the scoop ("Know what you preach," Oct. 14)! As soon as I finish this, I'm on my way out to do some good works to assure my salvation! Oh wait, no, I forgot — Ephesians 2:8-9; we are saved by faith. It's a gift. Now I know you are like, "What the?!" But hey, it's a free gift. Which part of that are you missing? The free part or the gift part? God offers us a free gift of salvation. That is what Christianity is all about. Whatever you were talking about there sounded neat, Andrew, but it wasn't Christianity.

Noah Stokes is an industrial engineering senior who is a Christian by faith, not by works. (And he sure is thankful for that!)

"How about we don't put out a paper today?"

'Fight Club' delivers a knockout

By Tracy Brant Colvin
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

The first rule of "Fight Club" is that it's not a boxing movie. Yes, it has many fight scenes and violence galore, but "Fight Club" is a movie about how violence affects society. "Fight Club" is a good movie, but it attempts to do too much, confusing the central themes.

Edward Norton plays the narrator of the film and gives the viewers a look at his life. He is a cog in the machinery of a large corporation, feeling trapped and isolated. In an attempt to connect with people, he joins numerous 12-step support groups, like the survivors of testicular cancer, blood disease and tuberculosis. Although not afflicted with any disease, Norton uses the interaction with the group's members to feel a connection to society.

He manages his life this way until he spots a "tourist," whom like himself, is a faker. Marla (Helena Bonham Carter) plays the fake who disrupts Norton's life. Bonham Carter and Norton come to an agreement to quit attending the group meetings, and Norton's life returns to a sense of coping — that is, until he meets Tyler Durden (Brad Pitt).

Pitt's character is a stark contrast to Norton's. He is self-assured and cocky, in a way that makes those of us who aren't wish we were. From the moment he lays eyes on Norton, it is evident that Pitt can read his soul. Shortly after meeting him, Norton's condo explodes and Norton calls Pitt, seeking shelter.

Norton receives more than shelter. He also gets in on the ground floor of Fight Club, a secret society where, in the name freedom and self-discovery, men beat each other to a bloody pulp.

The rest of the movie is not as engaging, as the raw violence of men in bare-knuckled brawls gets in the way of the message. Director David Fincher

Brad Pitt and Edward Norton star in "Fight Club," a thought-provoking film about modern society. The film is currently playing at the Downtown Centre Cinema.

("Seven," "The Game") uses violence to send a worthwhile experience. If it can do that and entertain at the same time, you have the formula for a hit. This movie delivers on both accounts.

Pitt's character takes on the persona of a cult leader espousing such anti-consumerism lines as, "You are not what is in your wallet." That and other statements give Pitt and Norton a following that enables Fight Club to reach more and more disenfranchised males.

Although Pitt says, "When you lose everything, you are free to do anything," Pitt and the Fight Club don't deliver. Instead of freeing members, it enslaves them as pawns for Pitt and Norton's master plan.

Any film that makes a viewer question is a worthwhile experience. If it can do that and entertain at the same time, you have the formula for a hit. This movie delivers on both accounts.

Norton does a fabulous job of sucking the audience into his life that is both perfect and pathetic at the same time.

Pitt gives an equally strong performance of a super-macho male. Although Bonham Carter's character gets lost in the shuffle, she provides a crucial link between Norton and Pitt.

In the end, "Fight Club" will be what you take out of it. If you want to take it as a boxing movie as the trailers suggest, you will be disappointed. If you take it as a commentary on modern society, you might be rewarded.

Raiders hold off Buffalo comeback

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Even magicians run out of tricks. Doug Flutie ran out of luck and receivers, too.

With Eric Moulds sidelined for the final drive, Flutie watched one pass slip through a receiver's fingers and another get picked off by Eric Turner in the end zone with no time left in Oakland's 20-14 win over the Buffalo Bills on Sunday.

"We got a few and had a few slip through our hands," Flutie said, after completing 19 of 41 passes for 210 yards and one touchdown with three interceptions.

Tyrone Wheatley racked up 97 of his team's 195 yards rushing and scored two touchdowns, and Michael Husted kicked two field goals as Oakland (3-3) snapped Buffalo's four-game winning streak and halted its own losing skid at two games.

The Bills (4-2) matched their lowest scoring output of the season in their worst game since a season-opening 31-14 loss to Indianapolis. The Raiders' win avenged a 44-21 loss to Buffalo last season.

"I've been up here eight or nine times and except for one other time, we've never been in the game," Raiders receiver Tim Brown said.

Flutie connected with rookie Peerless Price on a 30-yard pass and hit Andre Reed for 14 more to the Oakland 29 with 15 seconds to go.

Two incompletions later, including a pass that went off Price's fingertips in the end zone, Turner picked Flutie off.

"I wouldn't call it demoralizing, but we didn't play well," Buffalo linebacker Gabe Northern said.

Moulds injured his hamstring with about 7 minutes left and will be out three to four weeks. He was immediately missed.

"Eric is the kind of guy who can go up and make a play," Flutie said. "That's what I was trying to do on that drive, put the ball in position so someone could make a play."

Rich Gannon completed 15 of 22 passes for 155 yards with no interceptions, but the Oakland running game produced the winning points; Wheatley scored on an 11-yard dash for a 20-7 lead with 10:17 left in the third quarter.

Flutie followed the Wheatley TD with a five-play scoring drive, throwing 29 yards to Kevin Williams to the Oakland 12-yard line and finding Moulds in the end zone on the next play to cut the lead to 20-14 with 13:29 to play.

The Raiders ate up 6:34, but Husted missed a 32-yard field goal, giving the dangerous Flutie one more chance to tie with 59 seconds to play.

"You keep the wonder kid off the field, and you're going to be all right," Wheatley said. "You don't want them to have the ball and (Flutie) to have time to throw."

The Bills fell short as they targeted Oakland cornerback Charles Woodson on the last drive. "I'll tell you this," Woodson said. "You're not going to beat the Oakland Raiders by coming after me."

The Raiders, who rushed for just 55 yards against Denver last week after leading the league in rushing with an average of 147.5 yards the first four weeks of the season, ran for 107 yards in the first half against a Buffalo defense that was ranked first in the league against the run.

The Raiders, whose injury-depleted secondary was shredded by Flutie last year, this time intercepted Flutie twice in the first half and limited the quarterback to 23 yards on three scrambles.

Cornerback Darrien Gordon intercepted Flutie's pass on Buffalo's first play from scrimmage to put Oakland at the Buffalo 31-yard line. The Raiders scored on six running plays, with Wheatley plowing in from the 3 yard line.

On first down, Oakland averaged 4.8 yards in the game and 5.2 yards in the first half. "It was a strength of ours against a strength of theirs, and we were stronger today," Oakland coach Jon Gruden said, referring to the running game.

figured in the scoring, recording an assist on the goal.

But the Cardinal proved too tough for the Mustangs down the stretch as Cal Poly managed only six shots in the entire game.

The loss marked the third time this season the Mustangs have failed to win after scoring the first goal of the game. The team has won only once when scoring the opening goal.

Dimech's goal was his team-leading fifth of the season and his fourth in MPSF play. He leads the team with 11 points this year.

Mustang goalie Brenton Junge made five saves on 16 Cardinal shots.

49ers miss conversion, lose again

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — George Seifert's knack for winning in San Francisco hasn't deserted him now that he's coaching the Carolina Panthers.

Carolina scored 24 second-quarter points and hung on to beat the 49ers 31-29 Sunday, stopping San Francisco's club-record 19-game home winning streak and giving Seifert the victory in his first meeting against the team that unceremoniously dumped him 2½ years ago.

The Panthers withstood two 49ers' defensive scores, including Mark McMillian's 41-yard return off Tshimanga Biakabutuka's fourth-quarter fumble, and foiled the potential tying two-point conversion by pressuring Jeff Garcia into an incomplete pass after he threw an 11-yard TD pass to Jerry Rice with 1:28 left.

It was San Francisco's first loss at home in 18 games under Steve Mariucci, who was brought in as Seifert's replacement before the 1997 season, even though Seifert won two Super Bowls in eight years as 49ers coach.

Steve Beuerlein threw for four touchdowns, including 7- and 33-yard strikes to Patrick Jeffers. Wesley Walls caught a 25-yard touchdown, Muhsin Muhammed had a 22-yard scoring catch and John Kasay kicked a 19-yard field goal.

Seifert's 100th regular season victory came in San Francisco's first home loss since the Seifert-coached 49ers lost 30-24 to the Panthers on Dec. 8, 1996.

The 49ers (3-3) played their third straight game without Steve Young, still bothered by the aftereffects of his fourth concussion in three years. There is no telling when or if the two-time NFL MVP will be cleared to play again.

Garcia, in his third career start, couldn't prevent San Francisco's first back-to-back losses since midway through the 1995 season. He led drives resulting in three field goals by Wade Richey but also overthrew Rice twice and Fred Beasley once while they were open in the end zone.

Football loses defensive battle

MUSTANG DAILY STAFF REPORT

The Cal Poly football team won every aspect of the game Saturday, except for the one that matters most. The score.

Playing on the road against the Division I-AA team of the 1990s, Youngstown State, the Mustangs fell 10-7 and dropped to 2-4 for the year. The Mustangs slowed the game down, rushing 51 times for 154 yards and kept the offensive unit on the field for more than 37 minutes. The Mustangs had a shot to win at the end but a Craig Young fumble on the Youngstown State 9-yard-line thwarted that attempt.

The Penguins, who have won four national championships this decade, were led by quarterback Jeff Ryan who completed eight of 12 passes for 144 yards and a touchdown.

Ryan's 15-yard pass to Elliott Giles in the second quarter put Youngstown State up 7-0. Elliott finished with four receptions for 102 yards.

Cal Poly tied the game with 17 seconds left in the first half on Andy Jepson's 16-yard touchdown pass to Jason Brennan. The score capped a six minute, 14-play drive.

The Penguins (6-1) took the lead for good on Mark Griffith's 20-yard field goal with six minutes left in the third quarter.

Cal Poly threatened to take the lead in the fourth quarter until Ed Blizzard recovered Young's fumble.

Jepson was 20-of-29 for 229 yards with one touchdown and one interception. Young rushed for 127 yards on 35 carries. Adam Herzing added five receptions for 111 yards for Cal Poly.

Adrian Brown had 18 rushes for 81 yards for Youngstown State. Ian Dominelli had 24 tackles and a sack to lead the Penguins defensively.

STEVE SCHUENEMAN/MUSTANG DAILY

The Mustangs, led by Craig Young (20), rushed for 154 yards vs. Youngstown State.

Stanford too much for men's soccer

Team loses despite Dimech's goal, assist

MUSTANG DAILY STAFF REPORT

The Cal Poly men's soccer team dropped a Mountain Pacific Sports Federation game to the Stanford Cardinal 3-2 in Palo Alto Friday night.

The Mustangs got on the board first with a goal from striker Anthony Dimech 18 minutes into the game before lightning struck. Cal Poly scored on itself when a Mustang deflected the ball into his team's own net, evening the game at 1-1.

The game took a dramatic turn when Stanford inserted Brandon Garinger into its lineup to start the second half. The move paid off immediately as Garinger netted two goals in the first three minutes of the half.

Cal Poly would make the game close, getting a goal from David Yasso in the 64th minute. Again Dimech figured in the scoring, recording an

Women's volleyball continues winning streak on road

MUSTANG DAILY STAFF REPORT

The No. 20 ranked Cal Poly women's volleyball team extended its winning streak to four games this weekend with two victories over North Texas and New Mexico State.

The Mustangs improved their record to 14-4, 6-2 in Big West play with the victories.

Cal Poly wasted no time in defeating North Texas Friday night. Scores of 15-3, 15-3 and 15-3 put the Eagles away in just over an hour.

Last week's Big West Co-Player of the Week Melanie Hathaway led the way with 10 kills and a match-high nine digs. The Mustangs also scored 11 service aces and 14 block assists.

The Mustangs then moved on to New Mexico State and beat the Aggies 3-2 after trailing the match 2-1. Cal Poly rallied to tie the match 2-2 and then pulled out the victory in the final game.

Kari DeSoto led the Mustangs with a match-high 37 kills, and Hathaway added 22 kills and a team-high 18 digs.

The Mustangs entered the road trip still riding the momentum they found after defeating arch rival UC Santa Barbara last week to begin the streak. They then beat Idaho before taking to the road.

Cal Poly next plays Utah State Friday at 7 p.m. in Mott Gym.

Freshmen Worthy Lien (2) and Errin Benesh (5) go up to block a smash. The Mustangs have enjoyed a very successful season so far, running their record to 14-4, 6-2 after winning two road games against North Texas and New Mexico State.
